Overview of the role
The fixed-term role is needed for a limited time to provide cover for the teaching commitments and college duties of Dr Morgan Clarke who is on research leave in this period.

The post-holder will be expected to deliver teaching and lecturing on anthropological topics to a mixed cohort of undergraduate and postgraduate students and to contribute to postgraduate classes and seminars. He or she may be asked to contribute to lecture series such as Key Topics in Anthropology or Current Themes in Social Anthropology. For the department the post-holder will supervise up to six MSc students, covering a broad range of topics drawn from the core syllabus of the MSc in Social Anthropology degree. The college will require the post-holder to teach for up to six hours each week during term.

We are seeking an enthusiastic teacher with both breadth and depth of knowledge of the key subject area of the post and a full command of the relevant literature.

Responsibilities/duties
• Undertake advanced academic study to underpin teaching.
• Co-operate in the work of the School and College in both term and vacation. This will include the teaching undergraduates and graduates on taught courses.
• Supervise or co-supervise graduate students including supervision of a limited number of dissertations.
• Produce lecture notes, course materials, reading lists, and reference guides and convene lecture series.
• To teach anthropology topics to undergraduates in Archaeology and Anthropology and Human Sciences up to six weighted hours\(^1\) per week during academic term.
• Carry out administrative duties, including filling out termly student reports, attending Teaching Committee and other committees as directed by the Head of School.
• Engage in assessments and university examining.
• Participate in the student admissions processes.
• Take responsibility with the other Tutors at Keble for the administration and pastoral care of Keble undergraduate and graduate students in appropriate areas, and participate intellectual life and academic activities of the College.
• Be an initial contact for student matters relating to attendance, conduct, coursework, performance, and welfare (referring matters to appropriate others).
• Participate and assist in lectures, seminars, workshops and conferences organised by the School as part of their programmes.
• As a secondary commitment alongside teaching, to manage their own academic research activities and conduct independent research.
• Co-operate, as required, with the Senior Tutor, Director of Graduate Studies, and Chair of Examiners.

Selection criteria

• A doctorate in a relevant field.
• Some experience of teaching demonstrating the aptitude to deliver inspirational teaching to undergraduate and graduate students of high calibre, and to carry out student assessment.
• Sufficient depth and breadth of knowledge in the subject to develop course materials and research proposals.
• A publication record and in-depth familiarity with the existing literature and research in the field.
• Evidence of an ability to teach effectively, including to small groups in years 1-3 of an undergraduate degree and to contribute to the administrative and organizational aspects of the work of the School and the College.
• The ability to supervise advanced degree students.

About the University of Oxford

Welcome to the University of Oxford. We aim to lead the world in research and education for the benefit of society both in the UK and globally. Oxford’s researchers engage with academic, commercial and cultural partners across the world to stimulate high-quality research and enable innovation through a broad range of social, policy and economic impacts.

\(^1\) There is a system of weighted hours to assess teaching stint. A Singleton tutorial has a weighting of 1.00; a Paired tutorial has a weighting of 1.25 and a tutorial of three or more students has a weighting of 1.50.
We believe our strengths lie both in empowering individuals and teams to address fundamental questions of global significance, while providing all our staff with a welcoming and inclusive workplace that enables everyone to develop and do their best work. Recognising that diversity is our strength, vital for innovation and creativity, we aspire to build a truly diverse community which values and respects every individual’s unique contribution.

While we have long traditions of scholarship, we are also forward-looking, creative and cutting-edge. Oxford is one of Europe's most entrepreneurial universities. Income from external research contracts in 2014/15 exceeded £522.9m and we rank first in the UK for university spin-outs, with more than 130 companies created to date. We are also recognised as leaders in support for social enterprise.

Join us and you will find a unique, democratic and international community, a great range of staff benefits and access to a vibrant array of cultural activities in the beautiful city of Oxford.

School of Anthropology and Museum Ethnography

SAME is renowned for its contributions to anthropological theory, its commitment to long-term ethnographic fieldwork, and its association with the Pitt Rivers Museum and the anthropology of visual and material culture. It has also become known as a centre for medical and ecological anthropology, migration studies, evolutionary anthropology, cognition and culture, and science and technology studies.

Home to over sixty members of academic staff and researchers, over a hundred doctoral students, nine Master’s programmes, and two undergraduate degrees, Oxford anthropology is one of the world’s largest and most exciting centres for teaching and research in the discipline.

The School brings together a number of institutes including the Institute of Human Sciences (IHS), home to our undergraduate programme. The Institute of Social and Cultural Anthropology (ISCA) is a world-leading centre for anthropological teaching and research. The Centre on Migration, Policy and Society (COMPAS) provides a strategic, integrated research approach to understanding contemporary and future migration dynamics in the UK and EU. The Institute of Cognitive and Evolutionary Anthropology (ICEA) investigates the evolution of human behaviour drawing on a diverse range of approaches, including biology, primatology, paleoanthropology, cultural evolution, and psychology. ICEA includes the Centre for Anthropology and Mind (CAM). The Institute for Science, Innovation and Society (InSIS) researches and informs the key processes of social and technological innovation that are critical to business, governments and civil society in the 21st century and beyond.

The School strives for a culture that is transparent, inclusive and supportive for all its staff and students. We have achieved Bronze Level Athena SWAN accreditation and we are committed to supporting all staff who wish to undertake a rewarding career whilst maintaining a balance with their home and family lives.
Keble College

Keble College is one of Oxford’s 38 self-governing and independent colleges. It was founded in 1870 in memory of the Revd John Keble. It was the wish of the founders to extend access to the University more widely, and the College has a continuing commitment to inclusiveness. The College prides itself on the academic achievements of its students, and aims to offer a supportive environment in which learning can flourish.

Keble is now one of the larger colleges in Oxford, having about 420 undergraduate and 230 graduate students. These students take degrees in natural sciences, humanities, social and medical sciences. The number admitted each year is around 128, and the College enjoys very high numbers of applications. The Governing Body has about 50 Fellows and their teaching and research is complemented by a large number of College Lecturers.

Keble is located on a large single site north of Oxford’s city centre, close to Oxford University’s Science Area and the University Parks. In October 2018 the new HB Allen Centre will open at a nearby site between the Banbury and Woodstock Roads. The Centre will combine graduate accommodation with space dedicated to research and innovation. Further information can be obtained from the College website: www.keble.ox.ac.uk.

Keble College typically admits four undergraduates per year to read Archaeology and Anthropology, and three per year for Human Sciences, an inter-disciplinary course which involves an element of anthropology. The College also admits up to seven graduates a year for both research and taught degrees in Anthropology. Dr Lisa Bendall is the Tutorial Fellow in Archaeology and Steve Rayner (Institute for Science, Innovation and Society) is a Professorial Fellow. Further information can be obtained from the College website: www.keble.ox.ac.uk.

Social Sciences Division

The Social Sciences Division is a world-leading centre of research and education in the social sciences. The social sciences at Oxford are distinctive for both their depth and breadth, with activity spanning fourteen departments and faculties and one cross-divisional unit. Interdisciplinary links within and beyond the university are strong, extending to the humanities, natural sciences, and medical sciences.

Academic and research staff and research students are engaged in world-leading research that challenges current ideas and theories and is tackling some of the major challenges facing humanity, such as sustainable resource management, migration, governance, poverty and development, and justice. REF 2014 confirmed Oxford as the UK powerhouse for research in the social sciences, where Oxford accounted for more world-leading (4*) research than any other institution, across the social sciences units of assessment to which it made submissions. The division also delivers an exceptional range of high quality educational programmes (undergraduate, postgraduate taught and postgraduate research), all of which are underpinned by the innovative research being undertaken by our academics.

How to apply
Before submitting an application, you may find it helpful to read the ‘Tips on applying for a job at the University of Oxford’ document, at www.ox.ac.uk/about/jobs/supportandtechnical/.

If you would like to apply, click on the Apply Now button on the ‘Job Details’ page and follow the on-screen instructions to register as a new user or log-in if you have applied previously. Please provide details of two referees and indicate whether we can contact them now.

You will also be asked to upload a CV and a supporting statement. The supporting statement must explain how you meet each of the selection criteria for the post using examples of your skills and experience. This may include experience gained in employment, education, or during career breaks (such as time out to care for dependants).

Your application will be judged solely on the basis of how you demonstrate that you meet the selection criteria stated in the job description.

Please upload all documents as PDF files with your name and the document type in the filename.

All applications must be received by midday on the closing date stated in the online advertisement.

Information for priority candidates

A priority candidate is a University employee who is seeking redeployment because they have been advised that they are at risk of redundancy, or on grounds of ill-health/disability. Priority candidates are issued with a redeployment letter by their employing departments.

If you are a priority candidate, please ensure that you attach your redeployment letter to your application (or email it to the contact address on the advert if the application form used for the vacancy does not allow attachments)

Should you experience any difficulties using the online application system, please email recruitment.support@admin.ox.ac.uk. Further help and support is available from www.ox.ac.uk/about_the_university/jobs/support/. To return to the online application at any stage, please go to: www.recruit.ox.ac.uk.

Please note that you will be notified of the progress of your application by automatic emails from our e-recruitment system. Please check your spam/junk mail regularly to ensure that you receive all emails.

Important information for candidates
Pre-employment screening

Please note that the appointment of the successful candidate will be subject to standard pre-employment screening, as applicable to the post. This will include right-to-work, proof of identity and references. We advise all applicants to read the candidate notes on the University’s pre-employment screening procedures, found at: www.ox.ac.uk/about/jobs/preemploymentscreening/.

The University’s policy on retirement

The University operates an Employer Justified Retirement Age (EJRA) for all academic posts and some academic-related posts. From 1 October 2017, the University has adopted an EJRA of 30 September before the 69th birthday for all academic and academic-related staff in posts at grade 8 and above. The justification for this is explained at: www.admin.ox.ac.uk/personnel/end/retirement/acrelretire8+/

For existing employees, any employment beyond the retirement age is subject to approval through the procedures: www.admin.ox.ac.uk/personnel/end/retirement/acrelretire8+/

From 1 October 2017, there is no normal or fixed age at which staff in posts at grades 1–7 have to retire. Staff at these grades may elect to retire in accordance with the rules of the applicable pension scheme, as may be amended from time to time.

Equality of Opportunity

Entry into employment with the University and progression within employment will be determined only by personal merit and the application of criteria which are related to the duties of each particular post and the relevant salary structure. In all cases, ability to perform the job will be the primary consideration. No applicant or member of staff shall be discriminated against because of age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage or civil partnership, pregnancy or maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, or sexual orientation.
